ENGINEERS IN OGDEN.

In the Berthana Friday evening there was a gathering of over 300 of the leading men of Ogden and guests from outside, drawn together by Ogden chapter, American Association of Engineers, in an effort to promote the best interests of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Engineers proved to be exceptionally clever entertainers and demonstrated that they have become a big factor in the promotion of good fellowship and the creating of a broader outlook in this community. A large percentage of the membership has come to Ogden within the past five years, but all are today earnest workers for, and believers in, the future of Ogden.

The speakers of the evening were engineers from over the state, and their addresses dealt with projects which are to make Utah a more prosperous commonwealth.

The Chamber of Commerce and Ogden as a whole received a forward movement from the energy of the engineers, and Ogden is thankful that a body of men so resourceful has become a permanent part of this community.

STOCKYARDS DISTRICT.

No part of Ogden is doing more to increase the prestige of this community than the stockyards district.

Building operations indicate the expanding of facilities and the enlarging of the field of operations of the stockyards and packing companies.

Each year the livestock industry, as represented in stockyards, packing plant and commission houses, is taking a more important part in Ogden's business affairs, and the prediction is made that, within five years, the interests centered in the area bordering on and west of Ogden river will bring to Ogden more trade than all the other industries now sustaining the pay rolls on which Ogden depends.

UTAH AND CALIFORNIA.
Talking to a business men's club in Salt Lake, Rev. W. W. Fleetwood, formerly of Ogden, deplored the spirit of "knock" which has taken possession of so many Salt Lake. He said he would not have them like the people of Los Angeles who are constantly devoted to self-laudation, but he urged the people of Utah to indulge less in self-depreciation.

Rev. Fleetwood referred to the smoke nuisance, declaring that if the people of Salt Lake would quit talking about the dark side and would blow as hard about the good points they might blow all the smoke away.

Much of the good or bad in life is in the mind. Any one who delights in rain when it falls and rejoices because soon the sun will shine, will be contented in Utah or Los Angeles.

For vigor and health, Utah offers more than southern California. If one is ready to relax and let go of the stimulus which prolongs life, his place is among the colony of men and women who have elected to go along the lines of least resistance.

ABOUT THIS, THAT AND T'OTHER

By D. J. G.

The Ogden branch of the Utah Spring Hay Fever society is beginning its annual sneeze-fest.

Judging from reports and conversations I believe the membership is becoming larger rather than smaller.

The slogan of the society is: I have tried everything.

From the box-fide member of this society one must be among the unfortunate many who contract hay fever just as the leaves and blossoms burst forth and who suffer from three weeks to six months.

The Alumni association includes those few who have been cured by means of vaccine.

There is another small group in not very high standing. These are the victims who can get through the season with a minimum of suffering by reason of vaccine treatment.

The members in really high and first-class standing are those whose noses swell until they can't get a decent breath of air through their nostrils, whose eyes become inflamed and so gummed up at night that they have to be steamed open in the morning; whose noses become so sore from blowing and wiping that they smart continuously like tincture of iodine on a fresh wound; whose sneezes very nearly shake off their shoes and stockings and whose every waking moment is one of horrible tearing torture.

H. J. Packer, himself a member in high standing of the Hay Fever club, learned that an Ogden doctor was a hay fever victim. Harold thought a doctor who was also a hay fever victim ought to have some valuable information on the subject, so Harold went to him and said:

"Doc, you have hay fever. What do you do?"

The doctor replied:

"Why—I sneeze and cough and spit."

Yet while the spring hay fever sufferer is unable to obtain relief from even the most skilled of practitioners in the city, he can take a trip to Huntsville, or even to the Hermitage, and gain almost immediate relief. If he returns to the city during the period the offensive pollen is polluting the atmosphere the symptoms return. But if he can remain in the hills until the cause has been blown or washed away he can snap his fingers at the affliction.

A fine representation of Ogden's most cultured citizenship was seated at the Orpheum theatre last Wednesday night at the Dietrichstein performance. The theatre orchestra played an exceptionally fine program of operatic music before the first act and between the acts. Yet I noticed that few seemed to pay much attention to the orchestra music.

Everybody appeared more interested in chatting with one another. Still, a loud cry would go up if the theatre management sought to present a performance of the Dietrichstein sort without a theatre orchestra.

W. Preston Thomas, Weber county farm agent, gave me an interesting bit of information about onions the other day. He said that farmers had a pretty good chance to get out from under should a potato crop turn out to be extra large because people eat more potatoes if they are cheap than if they are dear. they are a dollar a pound or a dollar a sack.

I have had occasion to look at several new or nearly new houses lately and find that in most cases the windows, even in the living room, have been placed so high up that when seated in a chair, one cannot see anything out of the windows except the sky and the tops of trees. Builders tell me that this is the style, but that a few of their customers insist that the windows be placed low enough so that the house owner may watch the automobiles whiz by in the streets or see what his neighbor is doing across the road.

In Boys' Magazine there is a good story about a jury. According to this story a jury met to inquire into a case of suicide. After sitting throughout the presentation of evidence the jury retired and after deliberating returned the following verdict: "The jury are all of one mind—temporarily insane."

Joseph B. Bates, former county attorney, says this story reminds him of an actual occurrence in the city court in Ogden. This Ogden jury started court and attaches by returning two

DONALD KIRKHAM
Leader of Lagoon Novelty Syncopated Orchestra

It will come as a pleasant surprise to the people of Ogden to know that Donald Kirkham has been engaged to direct the orchestra at Lagoon Resort this season.

Mr. Kirkham is probably one of the best known of Utah's younger musicians. He comes direct from a 27 months' professional tour of the United States during which he played in some of the world's largest dance halls. Notably among these were the Casino at South Haven, Mich., and the Arsenal at Springfield, Ill. Mr. Kirkham was director of an orchestra at the largest summer resort in Michigan last summer. From there he went to Casino Gardens in Indianapolis, and thence to Chicago where he led an orchestra for a musical revue.

During the war he was a member of the 145th Field Artillery, and he wrote the official march for that organization.

Mr. Kirkham counts among his personal friends, Isham Jones, leader of Chicago's largest orchestra and maker of popular phonograph records. And in announcing his plans for the coming season at Lagoon, Mr. Kirkham lays emphasis on his intention to provide the kind of music that is made by the best dance orchestra in the country.

Several new features will be introduced at Lagoon by Mr. Kirkham, among them being the playing of the trombone and megaphone, and other novel features for the entertainment of the "Dance music has undergone changes, especially in the last few years," says Mr. Kirkham. "The dance music of today is a new thing, a new sound and a new rhythm. It is the best orchestra, but it is obtained without sacrifice. We will give them the best dancers. We will give them the best music, not noise."

Since the dance orchestra especially to the young people, the best talent available in the country has been gathered together by Mr. Kirkham to form his orchestra of nine pieces.

signed verdicts, one of "not charged" and the other "not guilty." The foreman was asked to read the verdict to the jury, but he had appealed to the rules against reading with the jury, told the jury he thought they should sign the verdict.

And the jury took his advice. We all laugh on the occasion the answers are published in school and college men make questions asked to test their knowledge of current events. ## Discounting the Count

A COUNT used to be a man in charge of a count of 500 persons to whom he was sort of overlord. This is not true today because of altered political conditions.

We still have counts, but the count business has changed somewhat.

Business, of all kinds, has undergone something of a revolution. It was not so many years ago that pack peddlers were the sole distributors and transporters of many of the household articles of the day. Their legs set the limits for most distribution problems in those days.

Modern transportation, progressive sales methods—AND ADVERTISING—have broken the shackles of time.

They make a speedy job of what used to take years. Through advertising many an article has been introduced simultaneously in stores all over the country.

Advertising today is the method used by business to tell you why you should have certain goods and how to identify those goods. The advertisements you find here are a truthful CATALOG of needed merchandise.

Articles of all kinds and for all purposes are presented in a pleasant way through the medium of type and picture. The outstanding requirements of every member of the family are met by offers of good merchandise of proved value.

Use the advertisements for guidance and you will be a constant gainer
